LIEUT. ANDERSON TO WED

Miss Maude Brown, of Georgia, to Become His Bride On August 24.

Milady's Kalendar. Roses and jasmine embowered a door
That never was closed to the wayworn
—Eliza Cook.

The violet loves a sunny bank;
The cowslip loves the len;
The scarlet erroper loves the elm
But I love—thee.

—Bayard Taylor.

Where fall the tears of love the rose appears, and where the ground is bright with friendship's tears, Forset-me-nots, and violets' heavenly

pring glittering with the cheerful drops

Mourn, little harebells, o'er the lee;
Ye stately foxgloves fair to see;
Ye woodbines hanging bonnile
In scented powers;
Ye roses on your thorny tree
The first of flowers.

—Burns.

Rose, what has become of that delicate hue?
And where is the violet's beautiful blue?
Does aught of its sweetness the blossom beguille?
That meadow, those daistes; why do they not smile?

—John Byrom,

SPRING FLOWERS.

low not which I love the most,

r which the comilest shows—

timid, bashful violet, the royal-hearted rose.

The pansy in her purple dress,
The pink with check of red,
Dr the faint, fair hellotrope, who hangs,
Like a bashful maid, her head;

Like a bashful maid, her head:

For I love and prize you, one and all,

From the least low bloom of spring

To the lily fair, whose clothes outshine

The raiment of a king.

—Phoebe Cary.

Where are the songs of summer? With the sun,
Oping the dusky cyclids of the South,
I'll shade and silence waken up as one,
And morning sings with a warm edorous mouth,

Plan em out SHOE SALE.

LITTLE BROWN HANDS.

By MARY H. KROUT.

Mary H. Krout was born in Crawfordsville, in 1857. Her life has been spent in literary and newspaper work. She is now on the editorial staff of the Denver, Col., Times. She has published several books.

HEY drive home the cows from the pasture, Up through the long shady lane, Where the quall whistles loud in the wheat-fields, That are yellow with ripening grain.

They find, in the thick waving grasses, Where the scarlet-lipped strawberry grows. They gather the earliest snowdrops, And the first crimson buds of the rose.

They toss the new hay in the meadow; They gather the elder-bloom white; They find where the dusky grapes purple In the soft-tinted October They know where the apples hang ripest, And are sweeter than Italy's wines; They know where the fruit hangs the thickest On the long, thorny blackberry vines.

They gather the delicate sea-weeds, And build tiny castles of sand; They pick up the beautiful sea-shells-Fairy barks that have drifted to land. They wave from the tall, rocking tree-tops Where the oriole's hammock-nest swings; And at night-time are folded in slumber By a song that a fond mother sings.

Those who toil bravely are strongest; The humble and poor become great; And so from these brown-handed children Shall grow mighty rulers of state. The pen of the author and statesman-The noble and wise of the land-The sword, and the chisel, and palette, Shall be held in the little brown hand.

This series began in The Times-Dispatch Sunday, October 11, 1903. One is published each day.
